City Curfew Law Passed Without Opposition

10:30 DEADLINE SET FOR GIRLS, BOYS UNDER 17

Parents Of Violators To Be Hailed Into Court By Police

FINE AND JAIL LIKELY

Complete Record To Be Kept Of All Cases Investigated

Circleville's new curfew law, adopted unanimously by city council Wednesday evening as an emergency measure, becomes effective Thursday with all boys and girls under 17 years of age ordered off the streets before 10:30 p. m.

The measure was signed by Mayor Ben H. Gordon immediately after passage, city officials acting as quickly as possible on the ordinance which was requested by Judge Lemuel B. Weldon of juvenile court as a means through which increasing delinquency complaints may be combatted.

Under terms of the ordinance no children will be arrested, but Circleville police are expected to record the name of every child found on the streets after 10:30, unless they are on legitimate business or are with their parents. Names of the parents of the delinquent youngsters will also be recorded, the parents being called into court.

Penalties Provided

Penalties set up under the ordinance are against the parents and not the children, juvenile authorities believing that any penalties invoked should be against fathers and mothers of youngsters who run the streets late at night.

The first time the parent or guardian of a delinquent is cited into court, a warning is in order. For a second offense a fine of not more than $10 is to be invoked. For offenses after the second a fine of $25 and 10 days in jail may be ordered by the mayor.

Police Responsible

Police are given a major responsibility in enforcing the new ordinance. They must keep a complete record of all cases investigated. This record must be submitted regularly to juvenile court so Judge Weldon may check on the parents.

When the measure was placed before council, Judge Weldon approved. (Continued on Page Three)

MAIL SERVICE CUT

DAYTON, Aug. 19—The power shortage struck a new blow at Dayton's civilian population today. Postmaster Clarence N. Greer announced that, effective September 1, all Dayton with the exception of the downtown business district would be limited to one delivery a day. He said the curtailment was necessary so that the depleted carrier force could serve the war-expanded city.

SPLIT BALLOT TREND RAPPED

Dingell Fears Republicans Will Rule Congress If FDR Runs Again

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—Fearful that GOP-controlled legislatures are setting the stage for President Roosevelt to have a Republican congress if elected to a fourth term, Rep. John D. Dingell (D) Mich., announced today that he is preparing a bill to outlaw separate ballots for presidential electors.

Asserting that his own state of Michigan "has recently passed a law separating the president and vice president from the rest of the ticket in preparation for 1944," and that Ohio took a similar step three years ago, Dingell added: "This practice, which seems to be spreading in states that the Republicans control, is nothing short of political trickery. A Republican legislature in Ohio pulled this same trick before the last presidential election, and Governor Bricker carried the Republican state ticket by a large margin while Wendell Willkie, his candidate for president, was losing to Mr. Roosevelt by a substantial plurality."

"Now a jittery Republican-controlled legislature in Michigan has just passed the same kind of law and there is a likelihood that other states will try it before the next election rolls around."

"The bill that I am drafting would simply direct that all candidates for president and vice president be on the same ballot." (Continued on Page Three)

JAAP ATTACHED TO NAVY CHIEF OF STAFF CORPS

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Officials of the Office of Price Administration reported today that the first application for the No. 3 ration book received from military personnel came from a Jaap.

They hastened to add that it must be spelled with two As. The applicant was Lieut. Commander J. A. Jaap, attached to the navy chief of staff offices in Washington, D. C. The Chicago center handles all applications from the military for the No. 3 book.

Quick Military Action Expected To Follow Victory Conference

PACIFIC NOT NEGLECTED

Roosevelt And Churchill Go Deeply Into Plans For Future Battles

QUEBEC, Aug. 19—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have gone deeply into the military program for the conquest of Europe, and today are continuing their examination of war strategy which, shortly, will be unfolded in battle action on the far-flung fronts of this global war.

Meanwhile, it has been definitely determined that one of the political matters discussed between the two leaders was the question of extending recognition to the French committee of liberation, co-headed by General Charles De Gaulle and General Henri Giraud. The source of this information can not be divulged, but it is fact that the question has come up in personal talks between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill here.

As the conference progresses, it is becoming increasingly apparent that discussions of imminent military action concern the European theatre of operations primarily, and that Pacific strategy now being evolved apparently is to be a "holding" operation until the end of the war in Europe is definitely in sight. In the words of one of the United States' high naval officers participating in the conference, strategy in the Pacific hinges on developments in the European war.

Since the entrance of the United States into the war, Allied strategy has been to concentrate on the European phase of the war first, and to turn United Nations military might on Japan later.

It is felt here that the usual lapse of months between the time of conferences and the opening up of military operations will not hold true in the case of the current war talks.

In the past, five or six months have been required to translate war decisions into military attacks, because of the necessity of transporting armies and munitions long distances.

Now, however, as United States and British war production approaches their peaks, it is felt that war material can be concentrated at invasion "jumping off" places in a much shorter space of time. Likewise, shipping conditions have so improved in recent months, that much greater amounts of (Continued on Page Three)

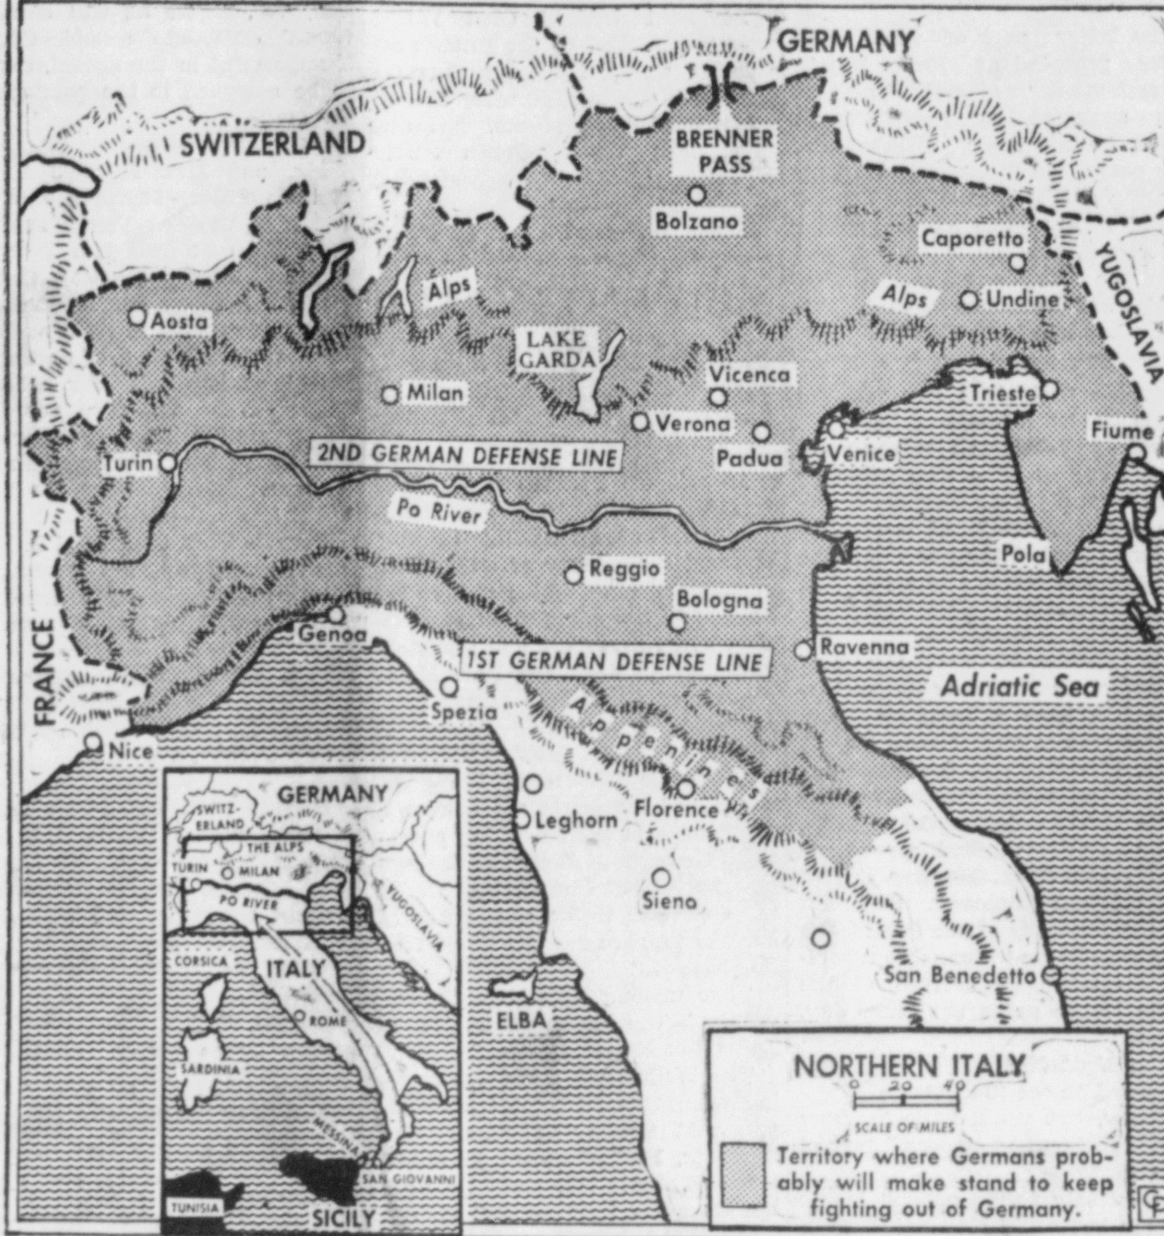

FORTRESS PILOT DEFIES 15 JAPS, RECEIVES MEDAL

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Aug. 19—Capt. Harold Brecht of Okmulgee, Okla., who did not swerve his Flying Fortress from a bombing run during his ship was attacked by 15 Zeros, received the Silver Star award today from Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Several members of his crew were wounded and his plane was damaged in the historic battle, but Brecht brought the Fortress back to its base in darkness.

Silver Stars also were awarded to Capt. Ellis Wright of Miami, Ariz., and Lieut. Garrett Middlebrook of Springtown, Tex. Wright, leader of a flight of fighter planes which sighted eight Zeros near Lae in March, shot down three in an hour-long combat while the other Allied pilots downed three more. Middlebrook piloted a Mitchell medium bomber in a destructive bombing run over Salamaua last June after one of his engines was shot out by anti-aircraft fire.

NAZIS MAY RETREAT TO THESE NORTH ITALY LINES

RETREAT TO THE NORTH of Italy by German forces is regarded as a possibility following close of the battle for Sicily. Axis troops are reported blowing up military installations on the Italian mainland across from Messina. If the Germans do fall back to their defense lines in northern Italy they would be fighting a last-ditch battle to keep the Allies from entering Germany itself. (International)

FREE EUROPE HOUR NEARING

Underground Advised To Hurry Preparations For Invasion

LONDON, Aug. 19—The hour of liberation for the long-suffering people of Nazi-enslaved Europe appeared closer at hand today than it has for some time.

In statements broadcast over the British and United Nations radio last night, the Allied high command told the anti-Nazi underground movements of France, Norway and other occupied nations to perfect all their preparations in the shortest possible time for an invasion that may strike anywhere at any moment.

It was the first time that Allied strategists have advised the underground movements to get ready for action within the near future. On previous occasions, Allied propagandists have warned the friends of democracy to bide their time in their preparations and to take extreme care not to disclose their identities. Repeatedly, they have cautioned against premature action which might harm rather than aid the invasion forces.

There was no such tone in last night's messages to the conquered nations from London and Algiers. The broadcast that issued from the powerful United Nations transmitter in North Africa declared unequivocally:

"We urge you to perfect all your preparations in the shortest possible time, but to exercise the (Continued on Page Three)

SOLDIERS SET FOR RESCUE OF TOMATO CROP

FORT DIX, N. J., Aug. 19—Army authorities today prepared special 72-hour leaves for 1,000 soldiers of Fort Dix to rescue the tomato crop in southern New Jersey which is in danger of spoilage unless canning takes place immediately.

Russel J. Eldridge, state war manpower commissioner, said soldiers would work at the Campbell Soup Co., Camden, N. J., and other south Jersey canneries and would receive regular civilian pay in addition to their army wages.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well, . . . pop's in the army. No matter what congress may think about it, the draft of fathers has begun.

Only a few days ago the majority leaders of congress said there wasn't any necessity to meet immediately to talk about legislating against drafting fathers of minor children.

They said that drafting of fathers wouldn't begin until October 1, . . . if at all.

So what happened? So on Tuesday, August 17, 1943, a Massachusetts father of five small children and a Pennsylvania father of six children were called up for induction.

And there you are, my dear parishioners. The drafting of fathers is out of the theoretical stage. It's out of the discussion. It's here.

I don't know about you, but me . . . well, I'd rather have some inscription on my tombstone than "He was a member of the draft board which was the first to call up the father of six young children for military service."

Thought for the day: Uncle Sam gains two soldiers. Eleven children lose their fathers.

MERCURY FALLS TO 47 AND SETS NEW LOW MARK

Temperature tumbled to 47 degrees Thursday morning in Circleville for a new low for the fall season. The reading was seven degrees under Tuesday's low reading.

Accompanying the slide in the mercury was a heavy fog which blanketed nearly all roads in Pickaway county district, slowing down motor traffic.

August has brought some interesting comparisons in high and low readings.

Only a week ago the mercury climbed to 91 degrees, this mark prevailing Thursday and Friday. The 47 degree reading recorded Thursday morning is 44 degrees under the peak reading for the month.

U. S. AIR MIGHT PAYS DIVIDENDS

Yankee Strategy Also Proving Effective On Pacific Front

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—American superiority in planes and pilots today was paying mounting dividends as U. S. forces knifed deeper and deeper into Japan's outer defenses guarding the approaches to key enemy bases on the vast Pacific war front.

U. S. strategy also was paying returns and foreshadowed bold new strokes in the developing campaign to smash Japan's military might, which has been weakened considerably in some war zones by a long string of U. S. victories.

As the result of developments during the last few months, the Japs not only have lost ground, but two fairly large enemy garrisons now are blockaded and virtually cut off from supplies—one on Kiska in the Aleutians and another on Kolombangara island in the central Solomons.

On Kiska an estimated 10,000 Jap troops have been cut off from their homeland by American sea-air forces since U. S. soldiers wiped out the Jap garrison on Attu in May and June. Approximately 3,000 Jap troops were believed lost on Attu.

In a similar operation in the Solomons, American forces wiped out between 5,000 and 7,000 Jap troops at Munda on New Georgia island and then by-passed the (Continued on Page Three)

NAZI "VICTORY" UNIFORMS IN RUSS MUSEUM

BOSTON, Aug. 19—Special dress uniforms issued German troops for a triumphant victory march in Moscow are now on exhibition at the Red army museum in that city.

This was disclosed by W. G. Gollen, pilot for Former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies on his recent trip to Russia.

He and Otis F. Bryan, who piloted President Roosevelt to the Casablanca conference, were given a reception by aviation officials.

Grubbs Face Arrest As "Dodgers"

Jehovah's Witnesses Stand Firm In Refusal To Obey Draft Order

Action is expected to be taken during the next 24 hours by U. S. district court in Columbus against two Circleville members of the Jehovah's Witness sect who have refused their country's call to the colors by failing to report for induction. Involved are James Matthew Grubb, 22, and his brother, John Wade Grubb, 21, both of whom claim to be ministers of the Jehovah's Witness organization.

Pickaway county Selective Service office notified the district attorney shortly after 5 p. m. Wednesday that a five day period allowed the Grubb brothers in which to change their minds concerning reporting for service had expired. Action is now up to the U. S. court.

It is believed likely that a U. S. deputy marshal will come to Circleville to take the pair into custody. Draft delinquency charges against them will be pressed in the court of Judge Mell G. Underwood. Efforts of the brothers to escape service by obtaining deferred classifications because of their religious beliefs failed when the district board of appeals upheld the local board's I-A classification.

A brother of the pair, Daniel Grubb, also claimed a religious classification, but he reported for induction, a step his brothers refused to take. He is now at Fort Knox, Ky.

Five members of the sect went on trial Thursday in federal court, Columbus, for violation of the Selective Service act following conviction Wednesday of five others before Federal Judge John H. Druffel, Cincinnati. Judge Druffel sat in place of Judge Underwood who stepped down after affidavits of prejudice were filed by the Jehovah's Witnesses.

Convicted Wednesday were Carl H. Hedger, 19; William R. Muncie, 22, and William H. Hornsby, 22, all of Columbus; Robert Breaston, 34, of Bellefontaine, and William E. Zohnd, 22, of Clarinton.

Imposition of sentence was postponed by Judge Druffel, but maximum penalty in the cases is five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Those who went on trial Thursday were Russell A. Lowe, 20, Zanesville; Ronald R. White, 28, Cardington; Thomas W. Noble, 34, Rayland; Lewis W. Jeffries, 21, Edison and Cecil R. Roberts, 21, Rayland.

HUBBY TAKES WIFE FISHING TO HALT SUIT

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—All was happy and serene again in the Bieze family today.

Ariene Bieze, 22 and pretty, had filed suit for divorce from her husband, Clarence. This was her complaint:

"Before they were married Clarence used to take her out on fishing trips and she grew very fond of fishing, indeed. But after the marriage he took her out on the trips no more whatever."

So when she appeared before Judge Joseph Sabath, it was assumed she was after her final decree. Such was not the case. She explained happily to the court:

"Clarence called me up and said he had just bought a new tent, two new fishing rods and a motorcycle with a seat on it for me. We're going fishing!"

Judge Sabath beamed his approval and dismissed the case.

Swiss Report Activity In Lisbon; Nazi Escape Line At Kharkov Menaced

By International News Service
American naval forces which supported the advance of the American Seventh army in Sicily have begun shelling military objectives on the Italian mainland, Gen. Eisenhower announced today.

Bridges and power installations at Gioia, Tauro and Palmi in the Gulf of Gioia were blasted from the sea and violent explosions were observed on the Italian shore.

Allied and Axis shore batteries exchanged occasional shellfire across the narrow Strait of Messina.

Meanwhile, Allied aircraft raided enemy objectives in the province of Reggio Di Calabria on

ACTION IN ITALY?

LONDON, Aug. 19—Reports from the continent today suggested that a major development has taken place inside Italy but information concerning what has transpired was prevented from leaking out by a tight new censorship.

All telephone communications between Italy and neutral countries were cut off again by the Italian government. The frontier between Switzerland and Italy was said to have been closed at Pizzo.

the toe of the mainland, from which German troops are reportedly fleeing northward, and blasted Cagliari on the island of Sardinia.

Light bombers and fighter-bombers raided railways, roads and bridges and destroyed a number of enemy vehicles in a series of day and night attacks.

Medium bombers blasted bridges at Angitola and roads and rail communications at Pontodi and Staletti, while fighter-bombers in a sweep over southern Sardinia bombed a small naval vessel and left it in a sinking condition.

An enemy merchant vessel in the Gulf of Eufemia, north of the Gulf of Gioia, was attacked and sunk by other medium bombers.

Bizerte Raided
The communique disclosed that enemy bombers again raided the Bizerte area in Tunis last night and that six of them were shot down. Later reports on the air action of August 17-18 revealed that two additional enemy bombers had been destroyed in addition to those previously listed.

From all of these operations, the Allied communique said, only three of our aircraft are missing. (The Algiers radio said that Axis shelling of Sicily from the Italian mainland has diminished and that a number of enemy batteries have been silenced.)

(A Reuters' dispatch said the Italians had lost a complete army in Sicily—the Italian Sixth army, composed of nine divisions numbering about 130,000 men and armed with 1,700 guns and 150 (Continued on Page Three)

STAY AT HOME PLEAS FALLING ON DEAF EARS
NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Although the government and transportation companies have combined in urging people to stay home, bus mileage and passengers totals for 1943 are topping 1942's record levels.

In 1942 intercity, suburban and city buses carried 6,750,000 passengers 2,500,000,000 miles, while the first five months of 1943 showed a 35 percent gain over 1942. R. A. Hauser, vice president of Mack Truck's bus division, said today.

Common Pleas Court Activity Centers On Civil Suit Hearings

Pickaway county common pleas court activity during the fiscal year ending July 1 was centered chiefly in civil actions with the annual report of A. L. Wilder, clerk of courts, showing that not a single criminal case jury trial was conducted during the 12-month period.

Fees paid to jurors amounted to only $607.99 during the year, $162.22 going to grand jurors and $445.77 to petit jurors in civil cases.

Husbands received more divorce decrees during the year than wives, the statistical report discloses, 33 being granted to men and 32 to women. Five petitions brought by husbands were dismissed and 11 brought by women were also stricken off the records. During the year Judge Meeker Terwilliger granted custody of 13 children to fathers and 38 to their mothers.

Complaint of neglect of duty led the divorce petition parade, 53 new petitions being filed during the year on this charge. Cruelty complaints numbered 12, willful absence nine and infidelity one.

Number of petitions pending on July 1, 1943, was 175 civil and 43 criminal. The number pending a year ago was 174 civil and 39 criminal, 69 civil cases and 40 new criminal actions being brought during the 12-month period. The court disposed of 68 civil and 36 criminal cases during the year.

Costs collected by the court in 1943-44 totaled $7,747.79 in civil cases and $179.43 in criminal actions.

Thirty-three civil judgments were taken during the year for $76,336.13.

The report compiled by Mr. Wilder and his office staff is required by the secretary of state.

SON OF FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT DIES IN ACTION

Circleville friends have received word of the death of Staff Sergeant Joseph O. Wing of the U. S. Army Air Corps who was killed in action over Wilhelmshaven, Germany, on May 21. He was the son of Charles B. Wing of Woodland Farm, near Mechanicsburg, and the late Mrs. Wing, the former Janette Monce, who lived the most of her life in the Logan Elm neighborhood.

Sergeant Wing was widely known in the community, coming often to Circleville with his father who landscaped many places in the north end of the city, including that of Joseph W. Adkins Jr. on Northridge road.

By direction of President Roosevelt, a posthumous award of the Purple Heart was made to the father of the soldier. The young man, a turret gunner, had been stationed in England. His remains were buried at Wittmund, Germany.

sert him—on election day—by coming out for Willie.

Now John L. Lewis is about to execute another switch. Talking to a prominent newspaperman the other day, he proclaimed himself vigorously against his old friend Willie.

Gov. Tom Dewey of New York, he indicated, was the man the Republicans should nominate for President.

SLICK TACTICS

Here is how a Chicago Tribune reporter sprung the news leak that the OPA would not lift the ban on eastern pleasure driving, though decreasing the mileage ration of the middle west.

Ex-Congressman McKeough, OPA regional administrator in Chicago, had announced that he had received the new gas rationing instructions from Washington, but that no public announcement would be made for several days.

Whereupon a Chicago Tribune reporter telephoned the OPA's mail distribution room in Chicago and represented himself as someone in the OPA rationing department.

"My copy of the new rationing instructions is poorly mimeographed," he told one of the stenographers. "It must be a third or fourth run. I don't want to bother Mr. McKeough about it, so would you please read me your copy?"

So the obliging young lady read to the Chicago Tribune reporter the new and highly confidential gasoline rationing rules just received from Washington.

ICKES OPPOSED
Inside fact is that the OPA did its best to abolish the pleasure driving ban in the East, but ran up against the firm hand of Petroleum Administrator Ickes. He has never been too enthusiastic about the public going back to pleasure driving, has warned of the danger of fuel oil shortage next winter.

The OPA, however, was all set to lift the pleasure driving ban; had made complete plans to do so when Ickes said he would have to be allowed time to bring extra gasoline from the midwest.

He pointed out—and it is an in-

PIGGY IMLER CONTINUES BAD CHECK ACTIVITY

Private Harold (Piggy) Imler can take a bow. Police will testify to the soldier's right to slap himself on the back for being clever.

A dozen times in the last year or so young Imler has been in difficulty because of bouncing checks. But relatives have always come to his rescue, paying the necessary amounts to store keepers who have accepted his checks.

Imler was inducted into the army with the July contingent, being released from county jail, where he was held pending a hearing on a check count, just in time to get on the bus headed for the induction center. The youth was accepted and then came home on furlough.

At least once during his three week furlough he floated a bad check, was arrested and then freed when the check was made good.

The latter part of last week Imler reported at Fort Hayes, Columbus, for classification. He was assigned to Fort Custer, Mich., for his basic training and was permitted to come home Sunday for a few hours.

And now police have another bad check, one for $5 that Imler gave the Rothman store. Just what will be done about this check has not been decided.

escapable fact—that gas reserves in the East are low, and he would have to build those reserves up if there were to be a new drain on them from pleasure driving. Therefore he demanded at least two weeks to haul in the gas which the midwest will not use as a result of its curtailment.

WAITING AT THE GATE

Gov. Matt Neely of West Virginia has been a familiar figure around the White House for 32 years. Nevertheless, the other day he was kept under suspicion at the White House gates for 15 minutes. The Governor first served in Congress in 1911. He was one of the original Roosevelt Senators, and has been one of the President's close friends and staunch supporters. So when he arrived at the White House gates the other day, he said:

"I'm Matt Neely. I have an engagement to see the President."

"Sorry, but you'll have to show your identification papers," replied the guard.

Gov. Neely fished around in his pockets but could find nothing. In West Virginia almost everyone knows him. He doesn't have to be identified. Finally, Walter "Bill" Hart, editor of the Morgantown, W. Va., Dominion-News, who accompanied him, displayed his press card. It was signed by "Matthew Neely, Governor of West Virginia."

This was sufficient to get Hart into the White House. So, since Neely's signature was good, but not his face, Hart went inside, leaving the Governor standing at the gate.

White House receptionist Walter Simmons, hearing Hart's story, came to Gov. Neely's aid, and the President later made up for lost time.

MOUNT OF PRAISE CAMP ACTIVITY IN FULL SWING

Mount of Praise campground activity was in full swing Thursday following successful opening sessions Wednesday afternoon and evening during which many lay delegates, Sunday School superintendents, first elders and ministers gathered to hear the Rev. E. A. Keaton of Columbus, campground moderator.

The Rev. Mr. Keaton declared that "while leaders of the great nations of the world are holding a conference to plan warring operations throughout the world we representatives of Churches of Christ in Christian Union are gathered here to prepare for the world that lies beyond."

"The world's only hope for salvation," the pastor said, "is in Jesus Christ."

The Wednesday afternoon meeting was attended by 114 lay delegates, 17 Sunday School superintendents, 14 first elders, 72 ministers and others who participated in the Council's first gathering.

Highlight of Thursday's program will be an address at 8:30 p. m. by the Rev. J. W. Sylvester of Cincinnati, who is substituting for the Rev. E. A. Sager of Chillicothe, who is unable to attend. A full program was planned for Thursday.

The Council meeting will last throughout this week ending Sunday when the camp meeting proper is scheduled.

Mission In Lisbon?

Swiss newspapers said flatly that an Italian diplomatic mission in Lisbon is seeking to negotiate peace with the Allies. Intensified criticism of King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Pietro Badoglio was reported to have forced them to start peace negotiations. Italian army officers were quoted as saying Italy is incapable of continuing the war.

These reports were wholly unconfirmed, but an official announcement in London said Sir Samuel Hoare, ambassador to Spain, would fly to Coruna in northern Spain tomorrow for what was described as an important meeting with Spanish Dictator Francisco Franco.

Meanwhile the aerial war on Axis Europe from the West continued as squadrons of British-based Royal Air Force bombers soared across the English channel toward Germany during the night in the wake of London and Algiers radio broadcasts urging underground movements in occupied countries to prepare to cooperate with Allied landing forces. These unprecedented messages gave no hint as to where invasion of the continent might start.

Vital Rail Line Cut

The narrowing German escape corridor from besieged Kharkov in Russia was greatly imperilled as Red army units south of the city surged across the Donets, severed the Kharkov-Izium railroad and pressed to within five miles of a second rail line out of Kharkov.

The spearhead of the advance on Bryansk to the North appeared halted 12 miles from that vital Nazi bastion, but the Soviets scored new gains to the East and Northwest.

In new attacks, heavy bombers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command in the southwest Pacific returned to the New Guinea area and virtually wiped out the remains of an armada of 225 planes attacked the day before at four Jap airdromes. In the final assault, the Allied forces shot down 28 of 30 intercepting Zeros. Three Allied planes failed to return. Thus the final score of the two-day assault is 215 enemy planes destroyed or damaged against a total of only six Allied aircraft lost. Allied ground forces from the Mubo area followed up the final aerial bombardment by seizing three objectives.

Other heavy bombers again attacked the Jap-held oil and shipping center of Balikpapan in Borneo, far West of New Guinea, and naval craft damaged three enemy destroyers in Vella Gulf in the Solomons, one of which probably sank.

ARMY ACCEPTS TWO

Two more Pickaway county men sent to the induction center in Columbus last week have been accepted for the army. They are Kenneth Henn of Springfield, formerly of Circleville, and Evans A. Rutherford of Columbus, also formerly of Circleville. Their acceptance boosts the list of accepted men to 24, a little better than 50 percent of the number of men sent to the induction center.

MAYOR IN CITY COURT GETS "ALL THE FELLOW HAS"

Mayor Ben H. Gordon drew a laugh from council Wednesday evening when he reported a fine of $2.50 and bonds of $365 collected during July.

Asked concerning what charge brought a fine of $2.50, the mayor replied that the amount was "all the fellow had."

The large amount of bonds was collected when persons arrested on various charges posted bond for appearance and then forfeited.

ALLIED CHIEFS READING BAD NEWS FOR AXIS

freighter tonnage is available to move the planes, tanks and guns needed for attack.

That the Roosevelt-Churchill military decisions may be translated into battle action on short notice was indicated by a British official broadcast to the people of German-occupied France, calling upon them to be ready to help an Allied invasion at any time. The British have repeatedly informed Frenchmen that they would be notified when the invasion of Europe begins and, in the Dieppe raid of last Fall, beamed broadcasts to them warning them that the operation was not the awaited invasion of Europe.

Adding fuel to the "when" of the European invasion are reports from Great Britain in recent days, telling of the movement of British and American troops to the channel coast, and the evacuation of civilians from British seashore vacation cities.

Arrival yesterday of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden added strength to the conviction that political, as well as military, matters are under consideration. Eden arrived by clipper and immediately conferred with the President and the prime minister. Announcement was also made yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt will visit Ottawa "probably early next week." It was thought the President would take this opportunity to make a public address designed further to keep the Axis in a state of suspense as to where and when the next Allied blow will fall.

enemy base on Kolombangara and took Vella Lavella Island. From 5,000 to 7,000 Jap troops were believed stranded on Kolombangara. Latest reports on the deterioration of the quality of Jap pilots came from Col. Laurence C. Sherman, assistant chief of staff to Lieut. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commander of the U. S. army forces in the south Pacific.

At a news conference in Washington, Sherman told reporters that recently Japanese pilots have displayed less aggressiveness in air combat. He also said that U. S. airmen dominate the skies in the south Pacific to the limit of their plane range.

The speed with which American engineers are following up U. S. gains was indicated by Sherman when he said that this nation's fighter planes already were using the Munda air field, which was captured from the Japs recently.

Sherman said that sites are available on Vella Lavella for new landing strips, indicating that U. S. planes soon might be soaring from that point to hit Japan's key bases in the northern Solomons on Bougainville Island.

However, conservative military experts have warned that stiffer Japanese resistance could be expected when American forces strike deeper into the enemy's defense perimeter.

Once American planes begin operating on a large scale from the central Solomons, the big Jap base at Rabaul, New Britain, undoubtedly will be the main target of a twin aerial offensive. The other end of the sky pincers has been in operation from New Guinea.

According to Sherman, Jap plane losses in the Solomons since January of this year totaled 875, and undoubtedly at least 300 or 400 more could be marked up to operational losses.

As American factories pour out more planes for the fighting fronts, enemy plane losses are expected to mount proportionately.

peared to urge its passage. The statute, copied after one passed in Columbus and termed successful there, will keep boys and girls of high school age and younger off the streets after 10:30, and therefore out of beer parlors and other places.

The measure was read the first time July 21, but further action was delayed until Wednesday night because of existing vacancies in council. Rules were suspended after the legislation was given its second hearing and the measure passed without a dissenting vote.

Some members of council felt that there are loopholes in the legislation, but all were willing to give the ordinance a try.

Hours listed in the legislation are from 10:30 p. m. to 5 a. m. The time schedule set up is in accordance with official Circleville time, which at present is Eastern War Time. The city returns to Ohio or Central War Time on October 3.

didates for federal office—president, vice president, senators and congressmen—be placed on the same ballot, not separate ones.

"I think President Roosevelt will carry Michigan next year, and it is evident that the Republicans also think so—else why the law that they passed? But I can also see the possibility that with a split ballot and Mr. Roosevelt a candidate again, the Republicans might win control of congress while losing the presidency. That would be a tragedy, particularly in time of war."

Dingell pointed out that congress has no authority over the manner in which state tickets are placed on the ballot, but he decried the practice of ballot-splitting generally. It is "nothing more than a way to thwart the will of the people," he said.

Splitting the ballot in Ohio for the 1940 election produced these results: The GOP gubernatorial candidate, Bricker, defeated his Democratic opponent by a plurality of 364,659, despite the fact that the traditional "head" of the ticket—the presidential candidate (Willkie)—lost to Mr. Roosevelt by 146,406 votes.

Michigan is one of the few populous states that Willkie carried, having a plurality of only 6,926 over Mr. Roosevelt. At that time, many politicians were of the opinion the simultaneous victory of the Republican state ticket would have been by a much greater margin had the Willkie-Roosevelt race been relegated to a separate ballot.

PIPELINER POSTS BOND AS RECKLESS DRIVER

Charles Aills, 31, of 207 Walnut street, a pipeline company employee, posted $10 bond in police court Wednesday at 11 p. m. after he was arrested for reckless operation following a collision on South Court street at Ohio street.

The car Aills was driving collided with the 1942 Buick driven south on Court street by Thomas Stocklen, 48, North Court street. Police said Aills failed to stop at the intersection before crossing Court street, his car moving into the path of the Stocklen automobile.

Both cars were damaged, but no one suffered personal injury.

greatest possible care. Nothing must be allowed to betray you to the enemy which might give the enemy a chance to deny to you the means of action."

This unprecedented message was broadcast to metropolitan France by the British Broadcasting Corporation and then rebroadcast to the continent generally by the United Nations radio at Algiers.

While both broadcasts were directed to the French people, the message significantly pointed out that any one of a number of Nazi-occupied countries might be the first to welcome the Allied armies of liberation.

A Budapest radio broadcast picked up by Reuter's quoted "international circles" as believing that the maneuvers of the British home fleet in the North sea may be connected with an invasion of western or northern Europe.

Another Algiers broadcast heard by Reuter's quoted the underground "German freedom" radio as saying that "the German evacuation of Norway has begun" and that "shiploads" of troops are leaving the country at an increasing rate.

The message broadcast by the Allied high command spokesman said:

"With the occupation of Sicily, a new stage in the liberation of the occupied countries has begun. We are not going to reveal beforehand from which quarters we will strike next. The peoples of the occupied countries which will be the first to welcome the armies of liberation will be notified at the last moment."

TRAIN WATCHERS MUST CHANGE VIEW TIMING

Persons who enjoy watching the Sportsman, crack passenger train of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, pass west of Circleville must change their hour for watching since the train is changing its schedule next Sunday.

The train will reach Circleville 45 minutes later than usual, being scheduled to move out of Columbus at 10:50 p. m. instead of 10:05 p. m.

The later departure from Columbus is necessary to keep pace with extra heavy travel, military and civilian, which requires operation of lengthened trains.

The Sportsman does not stop here since the C. and O. does not have a station in Pickaway county, but many persons watch the fast train travel south through this district every night.

"IKE" CONGRATULATED

LONDON, Aug. 19 — King George of England today sent a message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean, congratulating him on the "great achievement in Sicily."

Persons who enjoy watching the Sportsman, crack passenger train of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, pass west of Circleville must change their hour for watching since the train is changing its schedule next Sunday.

SICILY NOW

ONE more stepping-stone falls into the hands of the Allies. Our army, navy and air forces are doing a magnificent job. Hundreds of Nazis have been killed and thousands of prisoners will not fight again in this war. Sicily is ours. Its airfields bring Germany nearer. The day of reckoning approaches.

But this is only the beginning. When the accomplishment of Russia is considered, her loss in men, in cities ruined and in food and goods stolen or destroyed, the Allies appear to have done almost nothing yet.

But Allied accomplishment is a little like an iceberg — only a fraction shows above the surface. The great weight is underneath, out of sight. Without the aid of the United Nations in the way of munitions and materials, Russia could not be carrying out now with such success her Summer offensive.

China is getting our aid and making every pound count. The forces in the south Pacific work their slow, sure way along. The north Pacific is not being neglected.

The Great Invasion is being prepared for. U-boats are being sunk. Airfields, factories, railway junctions one by one are put out of action. When I-day at last arrives, the Allies will be ready for that invasion.

No, Churchill did not prophesy the end in six months. If he were so foolish he would not be Churchill. But it could happen in six months if everybody gave it a push. If we let up, it may indeed take six years.

NO NEW RATIONING

THE statement that there will be no need for further rationing this year, except possibly in coal, with a chance to escape that, is good news. It is refreshing, too, to be told that the pleasure ban on use of gasoline was "justly hated" and that legal verbiage in regulations is going to be simplified.

Chester Bowles is off to a good start. If petty people will let him alone, he may get somewhere. And every American wants him to get where he says he is going—toward the simpler life. Useless words have become a great weariness and vexation of spirit.

HAYFEVER SEASON

MEDICAL science may one day turn up with some specific and dependable remedy or preventive of hay fever. Every sufferer prays the day may come soon.

Meanwhile there is one way to avoid much of the suffering—cut down weeds wherever possible. Ragweed is the chief offender. Cutting it down cuts down absenteeism and half-efficient work. Cutting down ragweed helps win the war.

Two-Way Bombing of Reich From British and Italian Air
May Follow Defeat of Italy Bases Allies Can Blanket Axis

WASHINGTON—A hard left hook to your opponent's solar plexus to bring his guard down is a highly successful technique in the prize ring for a quick knock-out followed by a right to the jaw. Allied air-men are confident they can topple Germany with the same technique by using air bases in England in combination with bases in Italy.

Prime Minister Churchill, speaking right after Mussolini's fall, said the Allies would not make the mistake in Italy that the Germans made in occupying France. Occupation of all Italy would tie up too many of our men but it would be essential, of course, to hold the naval bases and flying fields.

Air bases in Italy, together with the bases in England, would enable Allied air power to blanket the entire European continent. From fields around Milan and Turin in northern Italy, even short-range fighter planes could cover southeastern France, southern Germany, Austria and Yugoslavia. Long-range four-engine fighters, Liberators, Stirlings and Lancasters could probe further to plaster the war industries working for Hitler in Czechoslovakia.

The rich Rumanian Ploesti oil fields which supply Germany with one-third her oil for war would be within range for regular bombing—not just occasional raids such as that carried out Sunday by U. S. Liberators from North Africa.

More important, however, bases in Italy would enable Allied air power to adopt new tactics in carrying the war home to Germany. Thus far, the heavy raids on Germany have all had to come from one direction—England. Knowing that Germany is able to concentrate the bulk of her fighter-strength in western Germany and the

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

FIELD GOT DECORATION

WASHINGTON — The newspaper PM, which has a healthy influence on Washington, has recently got its owner, Marshall Field III of Chicago, in a most embarrassing spot.

PM has been riding the shirt off anyone who ever succumbed to the wiles of Mussolini and received from him a Fascist decoration. Especially PM has been riding Generoso Pope, Italian-born New York newspaper publisher, now ardently anti-Mussolini, because he once accepted a decoration from Il Duce and once gave the Fascist salute before the grave of the Unknown Italian Soldier.

What the editors of PM apparently don't know is that their own financial godfather and publisher, Marshall Field, himself, also received a Fascist decoration from Mussolini.

Mr. Field bears the title "Commendatore," and so far as any published records show, he has not returned the decoration to Il Duce.

Marshall Field went even further and was elected president of the Italy-America Society on January 27, 1930, when Mussolini was in his heyday and when the Italy-America Society was considered by many as an adjunct of Fascism.

On November 24, 1931, he was also reported by New York newspapers as being present at a special dinner in honor of Count Dino Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister and ambassador to London.

On January 26, 1932, Field was re-elected president of the Italy-America Society. After this term expired, he was elected a member of the executive committee in 1934.

Even as late as April 21, 1937, after Mussolini had horrified the civilized world with his rape of defenseless Abyssinia, had torn down the peace machinery of the League, and was pouring arms into Spain to support a Fascist dictator, Marshall Field continued to consort with Italian Fascists in New York. On that date, he was reported in attendance at a dinner dance in honor of Italian Ambassador Suvich given by the Italy-America Society.

Yet Marshall Field's newspaper now pounds away almost daily at everyone who ever received a Fascist decoration.

Note: Real fact is that Generoso Pope went to Rome in 1937 at the request of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise to try to dissuade Mussolini from his campaign against the Jews. While there he was invited to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and that was the occasion of PM's picture of him giving the Fascist salute.

LEWIS DESERTS WILLKIE

One of the historic political speeches of the 1940 campaign came when John L. Lewis deserted Roosevelt for Willkie.

John L. had been one of Roosevelt's most powerful supporters, had contributed more than $250,000 to his first political campaign, had voted the United Mine Workers for him almost to a man. He had received from Roosevelt in return the famous section 7-a of the NRA giving workers the absolute right of collective bargaining. He had secured Roosevelt's blessing for the Guffey coal act, for the National Labor Relations Board and a dozen other benefits for labor.

So a lot of people could not believe, until John L. Lewis actually went on the air, that he would desert his old friend Roosevelt.

However, Lewis even risked being deserted by his union—as its members did desert him—(Continued on Page Two)

War Worker's Hand Care

THE ETERNAL feminine is proving pretty important in the present conflict, but if my reports are reliable she is still the eternal feminine. She has pitched in and is doing a swell job of war work. Not at all infrequently this involves getting her hands dirty, not to say filthy, and even to go further, getting them covered with grime, grease, chemicals and acids. She keeps on doing her job and doing it very well, but the eternal feminine creeps out just the same as it did before the war, and probably will when Macaulay's New Zealander is seated on London Bridge sketching the ruins of St. Paul's, so she wants to have soft, white hands in the evening when she starts in with her heavy dating.

As a matter of fact, the Health and Safety Directors at war plants want her to keep her hands as feminine as possible because for a variety of reasons this tends to reduce trouble and accidents. In many plants counselling of the workers on the care of the hands is part of the regular safety advice.

Care of the Hands
Here are some of the suggestions that come from headquarters:
Wash off grime, grease and chemicals as soon as possible and do a thorough job. But try not to injure the skin as you are doing so. Use a small brush and the mildest cleanser that will do a thorough job. After drying the skin rub in hand lotion, or cream. A jar should be kept in the locker so that it can be used as faithfully as soap. If it is necessary to use a strong or harsh soap to cut the kind of grease you deal in, have a cream rich in lanolin to use immediately.

Dry skin is likely to be smooth and healthy skin, and wet skin is likely to lead to cracks, fissures and ringworm infection. So dry the hands thoroughly even though you are going to use cream afterwards.
Keeping Nails Clean
Dislodge grime and grease from the nail tips by running a cuticle remover under the nails with an orangewood stick. These should also, therefore, be part of the standard equipment of the locker. Dig your nails into a jar of cream before going on the job. You will have less trouble dislodging grime after the work is over. Keep nails at moderate lengths. The National Safety Council recommends that for heavy work the nails should be kept even with the tip of the finger. In fact, I should say this is good advice for everybody—heavy worker or not.
Hangnails are natural attractions for infection and should be treated by someone who is experienced at manicuring work. Snip it off at once and see that it is kept clean with an antiseptic. Soften cuticle with oil occasionally and push it back with an orangewood stick.
Nail polish is a good protective: it can be used often and thoroughly.
When the hands get stiff and tense from close work, relax them by shaking them vigorously from the wrist.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. J. C.—Is nitroglycerine good for sharp pain around the heart?
Answer: Nitroglycerine is a conventional drug for anginal pains, but in my opinion has quite an element of danger. People with heart pains are often in shock and nitroglycerine simply adds to that. Certainly it is not a drug for self medication—only under the advice of a physician.

A. K.—What do you mean by diathermy?
Answer: Diathermy is an electric method of treatment, using a machine to throw heat deep into the tissues. A hot water bag, for instance, only warms up the surface. By creating an electric current in the tissues, diathermy produces heat in structures below the surface—joints and tendons in rheumatism.

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

WHEN KAREN told Paul there was something she wanted him to do for her, after he had told her about Eva, and she had assured him she truly understood, he was more than glad to promise readily to do anything she asked. She had told him it would seem an odd request, but that he must believe it was what she really wanted to.

She said, "I want you to go on seeing Eva until spring. I want you to be very sure by then that you know how you feel about her, as well as about me. No, Paul, please don't interrupt. . . . I know what I'm asking. . . . But, as I said before, marriage is too serious, it is for too long a time for us to take any chances. You asked me to postpone it because of the uncertainty of the war. I am asking you to do this to make everything sure."

She was thinking of what Eva had said to her: that if given the chance she knew she could make Paul realize it was she he really loved. Well, Karen was willing to take her chances, too. As she had said to Paul—how long ago that seemed when she first had sent him to dance with Eva the night of the Festival—she would not want him if he wanted anyone else. Of that much she remained certain. If there were other issues that still were confused.

Paul said, "If that's what you want, darling, what is there for me to say except that I will gladly do anything you ask?" He thought she asked it out of her wounded pride, although she had been so sporting about what he had told her. He surely was a lucky chap to be engaged to a girl who could prove so understanding.

But if Karen thought that seeing Eva would make him forget her, she was mistaken. Karen was the girl for him, the right girl. He had been flattered, almost nonplussed, with the realization that the younger girl imagined herself so desperately in love with him. He would be less than human, not quite a man, had he been otherwise. Eva was an adorable youngster, soft and cuddly as a kitten; he had always thought of her as the kid next door, but he supposed she thought of herself as quite grown up. If he saw a bit more of her, at Karen's request, no doubt he could convince her that she was wrong in her feeling about him, that she would get over it, although that did not make it quite so flattering to think that she would.

"That's that, then," Karen interrupted his thoughts, pushing back her chair to show that she thought they should be on their way, too. "We won't talk about it any more until spring, Paul. By that time, as you said, lots of other things will have been cleared up. And, meanwhile, I hope that we can go on as we have been."

"I see no reason for going on in any other way," Paul came around behind her to help her on with the light jacket she had left fall carelessly across the back of her chair.

His hands caressed her shoulders as he helped her on with it, his dark eyes smiled into hers as if to say that what had just taken place between them had further cemented their relationship.

Although Karen smiled back, and although she did not hold any resentment in her heart, neither did she respond to his touch, to the intimacy of this moment. Instead, she was reminded of another moment in the tower, when Martin's hand on her elbow had sent icy flames down her spine, when the brief contact of their bodies, their pounding hearts, had made the whole of the rest of the world fall away, leaving her trembling and shaken to the very core of her being, not merely of the senses, but of the spirit.

She told herself that although she must not dwell on such thoughts, but must endeavor to forget them, that she must for these same reasons see Martin. She had to know whether he had left or not. She had to know what he was doing, how he was. She need not feel guilty about this, since she had given Paul the freedom to see Eva, although it was not the same thing. She need not make up excuses or feel, like Eva again, that she would be throwing herself at Martin's head. She could simply tell him she had come to see him because she and Buffy had wondered why he had neglected them so long. They had feared he might have gone away without saying goodby. She could also explain that Buffy's recent illness had been the reason why she had not lived up to her promise to bring him over for that long-talked-of fishing trip.

Oh, she had plenty of reasons and justifications, she told herself resolutely, as she drove across the bridge that following day, heading the station wagon toward the trailer camp. Having them, she had no reason for feeling so jittery, her heart misbehaving in the most distressing way, her pulses throbbing, her thoughts worrying with the question as to whether she would find Martin or not.

She found him without any trouble. His trailer was still in its same spot. He was inside, his back turned toward her, as he bent over the big radio she had noted on her other visit, apparently so absorbed in twisting its dials that he had not heard the sound of her motor or even her footsteps.

She waited a rather long minute, collecting herself, letting that tumult within her subside, a tumult that was now more like a quiet little hymn of thanksgiving that he was here and had not gone without that last goodbye. It was not until afterward that Karen was to realize that this same moment was one of perfect silence, that although Martin was bent over the cabinet in such intense absorption, there came not one sound from it to break that stillness until she spoke.

"Hi, there!" She tried to make her voice gayly nonchalant, so that she was surprised to see how it startled Martin, how abruptly, almost fiercely he swung around to face her, not with his usual wide welcoming grin, but with a defensive, fierce scowl. "It's only me," she hastened to assure him, although not aware as to why that ungrammatical explanation should seem of such importance that it had to be given hastily.

"So I see. His scowl gradually relaxed, as did the tension of his whole body and mind, though so gradual as not to be replaced instantly with the welcoming she had hoped she might feel her due.

"I hope I didn't give YOU heart failure this time," Karen said, reminding him of the many times he had taken her unaware.

"Almost," he admitted, his face slowly brightening into the smile she waited to see. "I thought I'd latched the door. Not that I mean by that that you're not to come in. Or that this isn't a swell surprise, Kay."

"You act overjoyed, almost over- come," Her tone was mocking now. "I realize it's not usually a girl's place to do the calling, but I was over this way, and it seemed to me it had been some time since we'd seen you—Buffy and I." She hoped that sounded like a reasonable excuse for her coming to see him.

He said, "I AM overcome—with delight. It has been much too long. Not because I've wanted it to be, but because I've been somewhat occupied."

She thought he might have managed a better excuse than that, in fact, it was so obvious he had no occupation. He had waved her into a seat on the daybed with its many pillows, on which he now sat down beside her. For want of something better to say, Karen said, "Go ahead with your radio. Don't let me stop you. Were you trying to get a special program?"

The war news was not too good; in fact, it was so discouraging she hated to tune in on it, but she supposed that was what Marty had been interested in.

"It's not a radio," His reply was so brief and curt she wondered if she had said anything to displease him. Maybe he did think it queer, her coming to see him. Maybe he did not want to see her, or be reminded of that moment in the tower.

"Isn't it . . ." She had wondered why he had given so much space in cramped quarters to such a big cabinet. Martin did not offer to say that it was, but she saw it was some sort of electrical machine. Probably some sort of apparatus used for far-reaching heat beneath the layers of the skin in treatment for things like rheumatism.

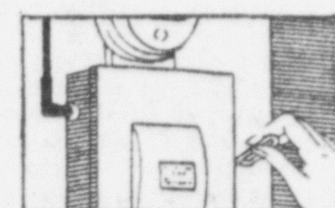

"It's a diathermy," Martin said now, briefly, curtly still. "I told you I came down here partly on account of my health, remember?" Hadn't she read, or heard, something just recently about diathermy machines? Martin had told her about his health, but he had not been using this machine for that purpose. Of that, Karen was certain.

Very soon, according to Factographs, 300 varieties of birds will be flying southward. This does not, we presume, include the lucky ones who have air transport priorities.

It's easy to replace FUSES

Fuses are "safety valves" that protect your wiring and appliances. The idea of a fuse is to provide a weaker link of wire to "burn or blow out" if too much current tries to pass through. An overloaded circuit, too many appliances on the same line, bare wires rubbing together in a frayed cord, are some of the more common causes of blown fuses.

Locate the main cut-off switch at your meter box, and standing on a dry surface, turn off the electricity.

Unscrew the "blow out" fuse, touching only top. You can tell it by the burned patch in the window on top of fuse.

Replace with one of the same size as clearly marked on fuse. Turn on main switch.

Find Out What's Wrong—and fix it. If you don't remedy the trouble, the new fuse will "blow" in a few minutes too.

Pull Off the Main Switch before attempting to replace a fuse.

Stand On a Dry Board when you change a fuse. Never stand on a damp or cement floor or on the ground.

Use the Correct Size Fuse when you replace the old one. 15 amperes in branch circuits, 30 amperes in main switch.

Don't Ever Use Substitutes For Fuses. Make-shifts are dangerous, they won't warn you.

"FATS" WALLER
That incomparable pianist-composer, improviser and comedian,
"Fats" Waller, who is the hit of the current musical film, "Stormy Weather", will bring some of his joyful spontaneity and outstanding rhythmic pianistic tinklings to the "Million Dollar Band" program this Saturday evening as Barry
Wood's guest conductor.

"Fats", whose real name is Thomas, began his career at the age of ten by playing the organ in the church where his father was a minister, and a few years later branched out to playing in movie orchestra pits and night clubs.
He has written three Broadway
musicals, "Keep Shuffling", "Hot Chocolate", and "Early to Bed," and has appeared in the Hollywood productions "King of Burlesque," "Hooray For Love" and the present "Stormy Weather."

SEAMEN HEARD
Jack Tars, stationed at the U. S.

interviewed by Parks Johnson, aided by Bob Trout, CBS foreign

Monday 8 p. m. EWT, over CBS.
Trout, substituting for vacationing Warren Hull, brings to this of many months spent in England as London reporter for CBS.

The receiving barracks, better known as H. M. S. Asbury, is a

PARKING METERS PAYING

George Crites Says Devices To Become Municipal Property Before 1944

With two vacancies filled at the outset of its meeting, Circleville council conducted one of its busiest sessions in several months Wednesday evening with numerous matters of pending business disposed of.

Ray H. Cook, East Franklin street, was elected to fill the vacancy existing in the Second Ward left by death of Julius H. Helwagen, veteran member of council, and Ray B. (Hominy) Anderson, Town street, won the councilman-at-large position left open since resignation of W. E. Wallace, North Court street. Anderson, who informed council his correct name is Raymond Baxter Anderson, but that Hominy will do, won the post from Troy W. White, West Mound street. White called tails as a half dollar was flipped, heads coming up. Anderson was then elected.

Councilmen Sworn
Both new councilmen were sworn in by Council President John G. Goeller.

All three men, Cook, Anderson and White, will be members of the 1944-45 council, all having been nominated last week without opposition.

Council was informed by George L. Crites in a finance committee report that before the end of 1943 all 180 parking meters bought from the Dual Parking Meter Co., Oklahoma City, will be Circleville's property and that all revenue coming from the meters then will go into the city's general fund.

Mr. Crites said that the 180 meters, three of which have not been installed, cost the city $11,038 when new. On July 31 a total of $8,649.28 had been paid to the company leaving a balance of $2,388.72 due. Crites said that revenues during the next three and one-half months should be sufficient to pay off the debt. In July the meters returned $978.28, Abe Greenlee, who is in charge of checking them, reported, this amount being a little above the average.

$4000 City Benefit
Under the contract with the meter company the city pays 75 cents out of every dollar collected to the meter company until the bill is paid. Since the $8,649.28 already paid to the company is only three-fourths of the total amount collected Circleville has already benefited by more than $4,000 in meter revenues since March, 1942 when the devices were installed.

Council took the initial step Wednesday evening toward revising the domestic rate schedule for disposal plant operation when a move made by Mr. Crites to have Mr. Goeller appoint a committee to investigate the plant's revenues in an effort to reduce the domestic fee was approved unanimously. In addition, Mr. Crites asked that the committee be named study the possibility of giving city residents a one-quarter "gift" during which no disposal plant rental bills would be made out.

Mr. Goeller said he would announce the committee at next council meeting. The full council will take action on the report.

Finance Report
Finance committee's report Wednesday showed that the disposal plant has $10,603.82 in its treasury.

Other balances in city funds as of August 18 included: general, $7,491.84; library, $3,971.56; auto street repair, $7,021.48; gasoline tax, $1,257.66; Berger hospital, $427.10. The total in all funds is $30,773.46.

Council voted several ordinances as emergencies Wednesday, some transferring funds into Miss Hazel Johnson of Jackson township suffered a dislocation of the right elbow Wednesday in a fall from her bicycle. The injury was treated by Dr. V. D. Kerns after x-ray at Berger hospital.

The Rev. Isaac Stought of Edmonton, Alta., Canada, will preach Sunday at Dresbach United Brethren church immediately after the Sunday school is ended.

A revolver lost two weeks ago by Dog Warden Harry Riffle has been recovered, Henry Fausmaugh of Fairfield county finding it and returning it to Riffle. The weapon is owned by Andy Ward, Ashville, who is serving in the navy.

Various departments and another setting up city law to penalize motorists found in physical control of automobiles when they are intoxicated. Several such charges have been brought here in recent weeks but fines collected go to the state under state law. Since Circleville has passed a physical control law fines collected now will go into the city treasury.

No minimum fine was fixed, that being left to the mayor's jurisdiction although a top of $500 was established.

Appropriations Made
Among appropriation ordinances were one for $1,200 for special police for the remainder of the year; $500 for extra labor at the disposal plant until the end of 1943; $200 for employment of a city engineer; $6,000 for materials for street repair. All were passed under suspension of rules.

Council elected Mr. Cook to the police pension board, also filling a post left vacant by Mr. Helwagen's death.

A claim for $25 submitted by Mrs. Minnie Burget, 375 East Franklin street, for damage to her garden by water which she blamed on a faulty storm sewer was read and referred to the laws and claims committee.

A move to advertise for bids for a portable x-ray unit for Berger hospital was delayed when councilmen asked more time to confer with physicians to learn the need for such an addition. An x-ray unit of the type contemplated would cost about $800.

A card of thanks from Mrs. Julius Helwagen and family for flowers sent by city officials at the time of Mr. Helwagen's death was read to council by Clerk Fred Nicholas.

The Wednesday evening meeting was the first held since July 21, a quorum lacking for the regularly scheduled August 4 session. Next meeting will be September 1.

FATHER DRAFT ORDER GIVEN BY COLONEL GOBLE

While Pickaway county Selective Service officials have not yet taken any steps to reclassify draft age fathers so they may be called into service, Colonel Chester W. Goble, state Selective Service chief, said Thursday that local boards have been instructed to adjust calls so that induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers will start simultaneously throughout Ohio. No date for such inductions has been set.

Goble explained that draft age fathers would not be called for induction from boards exhausting other eligibles until all other boards had no other men to call.

Hocking county board at Logan announced this week that it will send its first group of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers for screening examinations before Logan physicians during the next 10 days. However, drafting of this group will await the state order.
